People see Kamp Camille play and want to invite them over for dinner. It's impossible to hear them and not feel a sense of intimacy, for their songs are delivered in such a way that makes even the strange seem familiar.

With their unique brand of Ambient Americana and Folk they have charmed and wowed audiences from Olympia to San Diego, Austin to San Francisco, the city they call home.

Their voices blend so easily into one another that at times it's hard to tell who's singing. if you ask them they will admit that sometimes they're not sure themselves. tho their tightly wound vocal harmonies suggest another time, there's nothing antiquated about what they do. each song of theirs is a story, a miniature life, that will hit you right in the jugular if you're listening closely. And chances are you will be happy it did.

Band members include Nathan Hughes on lead vocals, guitar and harmonica. Chantelle Tibbs on lead vocals, guitar, hand percussion/percussion. Kenan O'Brien on Upright Bass, Nathan Heintz on keys and Taylor Lissandrello on drums.
